CALIFORNIA INTERESTS.

Matters Considered at the Meeting of the State Board of Trade.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 18th. [Special.]—At the meeting of the State Board of Trade to-day a committee was appointed to confer with the San Francisco Board of Trade to-morrow to make arrangements for their mutual advantage.

Mr. Dewey, Secretary of the State Grange, suggested that a committee be appointed to consider how feasible it would be to co-operate with the officers of his society in sending representative exhibits of California's products to the annual National Grange Fair, at Lansing, Mich.

Mr. Hatch said the Board would consider the matter, and report accordingly.

In the discussion that followed Mr. Alsip of Sacramento said he did not think the Board has done enough to show its production in the East, and that the Board request the various granges in the State to collect exhibits, and that a committee be selected to receive and forward them to Michigan.

Mr. Mills moved that the request be referred to General Manager and Secretary to examine into the practicability of the suggestion. It was so ordered.

The Secretary read several communications from different portions of the State relative to the indorsement by local Boards of lands in the hands of real estate agents.

It was stated in the East, and that the Board request the various granges in the State to collect exhibits, and that a committee be selected to receive and forward them to Michigan.

The Board then went into executive session. As the execution to Martinez was rather early in the year to bring Eastern visitors, it was a failure, and it was thought advisable to postpone some that were named for future dates.

The General Manager and Secretary will visit all the hotels and boarding houses in the city to ascertain as to the number of how many people are here from the East, and to report at the next meeting.

THE CALIFORNIA AND OREGON ROAD—THE LAST SPIKE.

The California and Oregon Railroad will be completed and the last spike driven next Tuesday. For this event Sacramento worked diligently. It stood the friend of the road when the building of the line was in peril and assailed by influences short-sighted and prejudiced, and which did their utmost to strip the road of the chief basis for capitalizing its credit, and left nothing undone to cripple the development of a line projected with wise foresight to connect by rail the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and the Columbia river.

At such a time, before and ever since, Sacramento, the southern terminus of the road, adhered to its faith in the company, its intention to build the line, and its ability to overcome the gigantic natural obstacles. So too, the whole tier of communities, from Sacramento to the Oregon boundary, were steadfast friends of the construction, and protested against the efforts made to cripple and block it.

The great work has now been practically completed. In a very few days more this city becomes the terminus of a commercial current which will flow from the Sacramento to the Columbia. Portland and the Capital of California are about to be united by a bond of transportation which is of the highest importance to each place.

At the former city the people are watching the laying of the rail nervously, and anxiously waiting to receive the news that the last spike has been driven. They will welcome the announcement with sincere manifestations of satisfaction. We in Sacramento have greater reason to rejoice.

We should, by some public manifestation, mark this important event in the city's history. For it is one of the greatest imports to California, and especially to Sacramento.

Assuming that the information is correct, that the last spike will be driven on the 25th instant, the commercial men of this city and the people generally should celebrate the occasion in some fitting manner. Sacramento should be the first to fire the saluting gun; the first to send the flag aloft; the first to greet Portland, over the wires, and welcome her into the relationship created by the new bond. It would be a proper day and hour for municipal officials to extend congratulations to all the cities of the line; for our merchants to meet and exchange similar congratulations; and for people generally whose city will then, by completed work, in fact become the California and Oregon terminus, to manifest their full appreciation of the importance of the event.

These will not be mere formalities if engaged in. Sacramento's people are rejoiced over the completion of the line; their business interests make them sensible of the great benefit this road and its feeders will be to Sacramento trade. They are not insensible to the fact that it introduces them not only to new and more widely extended trade, but to new competition also, and will make a fresh call upon their energies.

But out of that good must come. All activity in business, all quickening by competition, enlarges business capacity, stimulates trade and energizes commercial life. Sacramento merchants are awake to all the completion of the road involves for them, and they can be trusted not to lose an advantage or to be outdone by the entry of new competitors into her trade area.

ANARCHIST FREE SPEECH.

Of course the socialists and anarchists of England uphold the act of the bomb-throwing assassins of Chicago. The London meeting of last week, where the orators exhibited such astonishing knowledge of American geography, and such amazing ignorance of the facts in the cases of the Chicago anarchists, proved a great deal. It established the fact beyond peradventure that the anarchists the world over endorse the Chicago murderers, irrespective of any of the facts in the cases except one, that they threw bombs which killed human beings. It made no sort of difference what was proved on the trial, the Courts are denounced and the law cursed "all the same."

The meeting in London Sunday night developed a new phase of foolishness, for it was there proposed boldly and openly to assassinate Minister Phelps, and then President Cleveland, and so on down the long roll of all who oppose anarchism. The meeting, wildly cheering, indorsed the infamous scheme. Very amusing would be this recital by one of the speakers, were it not infamous for its intruder.

"My blood boils when I think of the sufferings which the workmen of Chicago have been subjected to in the hope that in their agony they would 'peach' on their comrades. They were imprisoned in what are called box-cages—dark cells, five feet high and four broad. The walls and beds are attached to galvanic batteries turned on at the will of a turnkey. The hopeless prisoner can neither sleep nor rest. Through secret windows powerful, many-colored lights are turned on suddenly, and the prisoner goes wild with fear. Late at night soundlessly Irish assassins are in the cell to behead the prisoner with clubs until dawn, and he expresses his willingness to testify to a District Attorney what may have been necessary to conviction."

There has, perhaps, neither in this country nor in England, been no instances so strikingly illustrating the strength with which liberty of speech invests free institutions as these meetings, where professed assassins are given perfect freedom to threaten with knife and torch. It may be, as is contended, that it is best that their vapors should be thus expended upon the air, and that they shall be permitted to freely groan for the American Constitution, as they did on Monday night, and to seek to rouse to butchery human beings right and left. Perhaps to repress these rascally fellows, to put a stop to their meetings, to prohibit their wild threatening, would lift them from the level of vulgar and common criminals, and possibly make them political conspirators, and possibly make agents of St. Louis, who is actually a martyr out of poor timber for political sale. Nevertheless, we have been, and are still, disposed to hold that the public should be spared the annoyance and unrest these nuisance create, and that some line-

THE LAST SPIKE

Testimony was given before an official Board of the City Government last night which should at once command inquiry by the Grand Jury, into what is unquestionably an infamous attempt to blacken the character of trusted public servants, and cover names heretofore honored and respected with the shame and disgrace of a detestable crime. If the truth is as sworn to last night, there has been hatched in this community a scheme of conspiracy, subornation of perjury and criminal libel, that ought to bring upon the perpetrators the heaviest penalties of the law. Two citizens—one a County Supervisor, and the other an officer of the Fire Department—have been charged with embezzling public funds.

LET THE GRAND JURY ACT.

The witness on whose affidavit the charge was made is suddenly indicted. Another witness now comes forward, and testifies to facts that suggest a conspiracy to libel and defame. It has already been shown that the charge of embezzlement against Mr. Jackson and Mr. Sullivan is false. Rank perjury has been committed, and an infamous libel uttered. Let the Grand Jury go to the bottom of this public scandal. It has the power to search for and find this man Grace, and force him to confront the accused—possibly to reveal the influences behind this whole disgraceful business, and expose the motive power that underlies it all.

The dedication of Geo. W. Childs' fountain and clock-tower given to the town of Stratford-on-Avon, in honor of the memory of Shakespeare, came at a time to answer the purposes of a protest against the speculations of Donnelly, Black and Clark, which would rob the immortal bard of the glories of his genius.

The people of Portland are watching with even greater interest than those of this city the slow process by which the ends of the northern and southern lines are being united. As that city has a railroad and other lines of transportation than San Francisco, this is but natural, but there can be no doubt that the new line will be of great benefit to the commerce of the city, and to the volume of business, good to San Francisco as to the Webfoot metropolis.

The tunnel in which final operations are being conducted in the Siskiyou range, just inside the Oregon boundary. It is one of the most important, and one of the same nature in which the railroad buries itself as it runs north. In fact, as a resident of Shasta recently remarked, "There is nearly as much of the tunnel as there is of the earth up our way as there is on top of ground."

Some of the most actively free men can be worked to advantage on the line at present, many have been sent away. Several hundred have been transferred to the different sections of railroad construction, so far as the Southern Pacific Company in Sonoma county, Placer county and the Santa Ine railroad.

Less than thirteen miles of staging railroad between the ends of the track in Oregon, although that does not represent the actual extent of the staging railroad, as soon as the railroad is completed the stage coaches which have seen such long service in the Siskiyou will be retired, and the line forever. Some of them doubtless will never be used as public vehicles, while others will probably be pressed into service on some of the mail routes in Eastern Oregon, on which travel is increasing year by year.

Highly inflammatory speeches were made Monday night at a meeting of Socialists in Bear Creek, near the head of Fall River. From here it is also twenty miles to Fall River Mills at the junction of Fall River and Pit rivers, where Fall river has a fall of fifty-three feet, making one of the finest water powers in the State. It has the double advantage of neither rising nor falling, nor is it subject to the rapid fluctuations of spring tides, and when properly dammed, will be a most valuable power for the State, as there is abundant water power, and water for irrigation, which only awaits capital to utilize it.
